About The Author

Shellie is a writer and a foreign missionary to the Philippines. She was raised a southern girl, but has lived with her long-time husband in Asia for most of the last twenty-five years; raising two great kids and picking up two extra languages along the way in Thailand and Laos.

Her heartbeat has always been ministry to women. Now that her kids are grown, she is ready to branch out into a new season of ministry; encouraging women to live the free and full lives that Christ died to give them. Shellie has a BS in education from Troy University, Alabama and an MA in Ministry from Asia Pacific Theological Seminary. She is also working toward her certification in coaching.
